Sam was worried. The following morning, he would have art class. It was his favorite class, but there was a problem. Sam saw the world differently from everybody else. When he drew, birds had different-sized wings, and buildings had strange shapes. Every time he painted a picture, his teachers and classmates would be surprised (惊讶的).

It was time for the art class. Nervously, Sam looked at the white piece of paper in front of him.

“Good morning, class,” said Mr White. “Today, we’re going to paint...”

Sam waited, wondering what the next word would be. Please, he thought, not houses, not buildings...

“We’re going to paint happiness,” said Mr White, with a smile.

“Yes! Great!” said Sam excitedly.

“We can’t paint that!” shouted Mike from the other side of the classroom.

“Sure, you can,” replied Mr White patiently. “Think about it, Mike. What makes you happy?”

“Umm... beaches, sunshine, and... ice-cream!” said Mike.

“Well, there you go. That’s how you paint it. Start working!” said Mr White.

Sam was already painting. He splashed (泼洒) large amounts of paint all over the paper. It was really beautiful! There were shapes that we didn’t have in the real world and the colors were so shining. The whole class cheered and Sam looked proud.

From that day on, Sam was never nervous about art class. He knew that he could paint happiness, no matter what he painted.

23. When Sam had art class at first, he felt _____ .

- A. afraid B. worried C. proud D. excited

24. What did Mr White ask the students to paint?

- A. Buildings. B. Hope. C. Beaches. D. Happiness.

25. Sam was never nervous about art class from that day because _____ .

- A. his classmates helped him B. he learned to paint buildings
C. he could paint happiness D. he could make his teacher happy

C

There’s nothing quite like falling sound asleep after a full day of work. Like people, animals need to rest after working hard. Some animals sleep in water. Others dig holes (挖洞) under the ground. Some even sleep high in trees or under leaves. But they all find a way to rest.

Some animals in the sea sleep in strange (奇怪的) ways. Fish sleep with their eyes open. They seem to look ahead far into the sea while they rest. Sea otters sometimes sleep in beds of the plants that grow in the sea. This keeps them from moving away. Parrotfish blow something from their mouths when they are ready to sleep. Then a bubble (气泡) will be formed around them. The bubble protects (保护) them from harm while they sleep.

Some animals sleep under the ground. Chipmunks sleep curled up (蜷缩) in a ball. Their beds are made of leaves and grass. In winter, they sleep for two weeks and wake up to eat the stored food. Then they go back to sleep for another two weeks before waking up again. Some desert frogs dig underground holes during the hot, dry season. A frog may stay in its hole for months.

High above the ground, monkeys find leafy places in trees each evening before they sleep. The tall trees help to keep monkeys safe during the night. Some insects even sleep under the leaf that will be their next meal. A bee may climb down into a flower to rest. When it climbs out the next morning, it is rested and ready for work.

26. The word “harm” in Paragraph 2 means “_____”.

- A. going hungry B. getting hurt C. growing up D. moving away

27. What do you know about chipmunks?

- A. They sleep under leaves.
B. They eat nothing for months.
C. They dig holes in the hot season.
D. They wake up now and then in winter.

28. What does the last paragraph mainly talk about?

- A. Some animals sleep above the ground.
B. Some animals like living in the forest.
C. Some animals find some ways to keep safe.
D. Some animals climb down into flowers for food.

29. What's the best title (标题) for the text?
A. How Animals Sleep B. Why Animals Sleep
C. Where Animals Sleep D. When Animals Sleep

How are you doing? I had a wonderful 35 in Sichuan. I got there by plane with my family on May 2nd. The weather was 36 and warm that day. I stayed there for only three days, but I had a good time. I 37 some places of interest, such as Mount Emei and Jiuzhaigou. We also took some photos and 38 the delicious food. It was very hot and nice, and very different from our food. People there were very friendly and helped us find our way. We thanked them so much. We bought many 39 in the shops there. Guess what I bought for you!

Please give my love to your parents.

Yours,
Jack

七、阅读表达 (每题 2 分, 共 8 分)

阅读短文, 根据短文内容回答问题。

How many times have your parents told you that you must eat your green vegetables? We all know that green vegetables are healthy, but what about other foods of different colors? You don't need to like all food, but it is good for you to have different colors in your diet (饮食), for example, red food such as strawberries and tomatoes, yellow food such as bananas and pears, and orange food such as carrots and oranges. But what about the blue food?

A few years ago, a food company put the color blue in its bags of sweets (甜品). Children like the color blue, so were the blue sweets popular? The food company was surprised to find that they were very unpopular (不受欢迎的). Children still like red, green, brown, yellow and orange sweets.

How many blue meats or vegetables do you know? There are few natural blue foods—it isn't a common natural (天然的) food color. So, we don't recognize blue food as something healthy or safe to eat. Maybe this is why we don't often use blue food coloring for drinks, cakes and other food.

Some people say we eat with our eyes. The idea is that we need to like the looks of the food before we try it. I wanted to test this idea and so I asked some friends to have a very unusual lunch. My husband and I made some bread and put blue coloring in them. But nobody ate them. My guests refused (拒绝) to put the blue bread in their mouths!

So will we ever see blue food on our plates? The answer seems to be “no”, at least in countries like the UK and the USA.

40. What is good for you in your diet?
41. Why do we seldom use blue food coloring for drinks, cakes and other food?
42. What did the writer do to test the idea?
43. Would you like to try blue food? Why or why not?
